

FINDING THREADS OF UNITY IN POLARIZED TIMES

The current state of public discourse and heightened levels of polarization in society have so sadly become familiar features of modern life. Growing ideological divides and increasing homogeneity of social environments are intensifying divisions and fracturing shared spaces making it difficult to restore civility and productive dialogue.

We'll examine how to connect across differences; to find threads of unity with humility, curiosity and shared understanding; and how to shape our attitudes, behaviors and social structures into more mature models of community life.

Let's discuss how such a unified approach upholds truth-seeking for the greater good.

Sunday, November 30, 2025 at 2:00 PM

Location: University of Victoria Multifaith Center

West Campus Gate, next to Finnerty Gardens, Parking Lot 6

Free Parking on Sundays*

Campus Association for Bahá'í Studies

Over the past 25 years, Gita Badiyan has collaborated with organizations committed to values-driven leadership and high-performing culture. As a management consultant, she has helped professionals make the leap to servant leadership as they cultivate courage and foresight in their organizations. Gita also serves as an Associate Faculty in Leadership Studies at Royal Roads University. She is a proud mother of three adult children who help make a positive difference in the world one day at a time.